Dear Mr. Fritchley,

Thank you very much indeed for the plan of my building in Bangalore which you have sent me. I like immensely the suggestions which you make for its improvement. As regards having an upper storey to it, I fear the cost may prove too prohibitive. The central portion of the building would have all to be terraced. It is Mangalore tiled now. I shall return the plan to you when you come down here. There are one or two things, which I want to explain to you in person.

The Executive Engineer tells me that your coming is not very necessary just now. He will let you know later when he will need you here.

With kindest regards, to you both,

Yours sincerely,
